

Police Believe Clifton Girl Disappeared 'Involuntarily'

... object of search

William N. Curry, a Washington Post staff writer, said Fairfax County police yesterday they believe a 10-year-old Clifton girl, missing since Wednesday morning, "disappeared involuntarily." Police said they have made this assumption because they have been unable to find the place of Patricia Ann Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Moore, 7359 Clifton Rd., after an intensive search yesterday of the rural area around her home. About 65 policemen and a helicopter from Ft. Belvoir searched the woods, vacant buildings and narrow roads around Clifton with no success.

William N. Curry, a Washington Post staff writer, said Fairfax County police yesterday they believe a 10-year-old Clifton girl, missing since Wednesday morning, "disappeared involuntarily." Police said they have made this assumption because they have been unable to find the place of Patricia Ann Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Moore, 7359 Clifton Rd., after an intensive search yesterday of the rural area around her home. About 65 policemen and a helicopter from Ft. Belvoir searched the woods, vacant buildings and narrow roads around Clifton with no success.

Mrs. Moore said the girl asked her, "Is Patty here?" "I knew something was wrong," Mrs. Moore said. Mrs. Moore said Patricia was "a very reliable girl." She told of how, during a recent thunderstorm, her daughter was walking home and a woman offered her a ride. "She wouldn't get in," Mrs. Moore said. "She came home soaking wet."

Patricia left the house wearing orange shorts, an orange and white striped shell pull-over and green sneakers. She is 4 feet 2 and weighs 70 pounds. She has brown hair and eyes.

Moore installs switching equipment for Western Electric. The couple also has a 5-month-old son.